

Meet SCPS Pace Setter – Lt. Col. Dan Clark

Keep our philanthropy local. That was the decision Dan and Jennifer Clark and daughters Caroline and Anne-Elise came to as they discussed their family’s giving plan. Dan is a retired US Army Lieutenant Colonel, and JROTC instructor at Lyman High School for the past three years. He sees students every day whose families are struggling with basic needs. His wife and daughters have a love of the arts. Together they decided to support the SCPS Give One for the Kids employee giving campaign with a major gift to The Foundation.

“Education is a family business,” said Dan. His mother, brother, and father-in-law are all teachers. “It made sense to give to The Foundation. We can keep it local and direct our dollars to our passions – students, the underserved, and the arts.”

Our thanks to the Dan Clark family for setting the pace for Seminole County Public Schools and the community!
